VOLUME 49, NUMBER 3

Many Faiths, Many Forms Dancing the Sacred Together

The time is getting closer for Festival 2007, July 17-22 in Berkeley, California! We're very excited about all the wonderful workshops and events we have lined up for you. You can find a registration form elsewhere in the Journal or register online at www.sacreddanceguild.org. Travel is easy with two major airports (San Francisco and Oakland) within 30-40 minutes of the Festival. See our special page of travel information on the website!

In the Winter Journal we gave you information about our five In-depth presenters: Axis Dance, Carla DeSola, InterPlay, Albirda Rose and Mahea Uchiyama. In addition, we have more than 25 presenters bringing you exciting different forms of dance from choreography suitable for Christian worship through Japanese Butoh and Buddhist Mudras from Nepal. There will be an interactive workshop on the History of Dance in the Christian Church and another one on the history of the social justice movement known as Hip Hop! Warm-ups from Pilates to Tai Ji; African Dance, African Drumming, and Middle Eastern Dance from Egypt. See the Festival Daily Schedule elsewhere in the Journal for a more complete list. Some of our presenters have written short articles elsewhere in the Journal; go to the website at www.sacreddanceguild.org to see a full page of information about each of the presenters and their workshops.

We will also have a panel discussion on Dance in the Liturgy organized by Susan Olsen whose recent Ph.D. Thesis, If Necessary, Use Words: Modern Dance as Critical Contributor to Liturgical Renewal spoke to the issues of dance in the liturgy especially faced by those in the Catholic Church, but certainly relevant to all denominations and other faith traditions as well. This panel should be of help to those who face discrimination against dance in their congregations.

THIS PROGRAM CAN'T HAPPEN WITHOUT YOUR HELP!

The Northern California Chapter of the Guild has three youth groups that have group membership. We are eager to have these young people at our festival, but festival attendance is expensive for young people. We have set up a sponsorship program where folks can contribute a lot or a little to help us bring at least two young people from each of these groups to the Festival, and young people from youth dance groups from other than Christian traditions as well, to share their dances and traditions with us and with each other.

We hope to have those young people who are from Northern California and who are attending Festival get together before Festival to get to know each other and share some of their activities. Any other youth who come to Festival will be more than welcome to join this group for any specially planned activities. We would like to urge other youth from all over the country, and the world, to come to Festival if they can. Perhaps your chapter or dance group can raise money to send one or two of your young people. All youth, of course, will be free to take any of the workshops or classes.

For more information on how to contribute to this program see the information on sponsorship opportunities elsewhere in the Journal!

President's Letter -

Celebrating the Past, the Present and the Future

The Sacred Dance Guild is turning 50! On February 10th, 2008 the Sacred Dance Guild will officially celebrate its 50th anniversary. On that day 50 years ago, a small group of dedicated and forward thinking people who were active in sacred dance and were members of the "Eastern Regional Sacred Dance Association," gathered together for their annual meeting in Winchester, Massachusetts. This insightful group realized the geographical restriction of their name and voted henceforth to be called the SACRED DANCE GUILD.

Your Board of Directors has designated February 10th, 2008 as the beginning of a "Golden Jubilee," a year filled with celebrations which honour the past, present and future of the Sacred Dance Guild: There are many ideas that have been put forth for consideration for initiatives and events that could happen during that year – in addition to the International Festival.

This is a very exciting time for our organization. The 50th provides us a "golden" opportunity - a time not to be missed – a time to celebrate with as many people as possible, a time to publicize our organization, a time to educate the public that "Dance is a Sacred Art" and a time to make ourselves known both to potential members, to potential supporters and to potential sponsors. We must make the Sacred Dance Guild known to those individuals and organizations that would financially support our organization and must ensure we are discovered by those who would choose to become members – particularly encouraging young people to join us.

In reviewing the material from the Sacred Dance Guild's 3-year Strategic Planning process, which began in 2003 and concluded in 2006, we can summarize that members believe that the Sacred Dance Guild's objectives are to be:

- * An advocate for dance as a sacred art

- * An umbrella organization for the many forms of sacred dance (cultural, spiritual, religious, movement therapy, etc.)

- * An organization that provides members an opportunity to network, share and learn with and from others involved in sacred dance

There are still many opportunities and initiatives that we could undertake that would greatly improve our efforts so that others would know who and what we are! We have recognized that in order to be a sustainable and viable organization on into the next 50 years we must consider and evaluate new options. The Board has begun discussions to see what the next moves should be to facilitate the creative energies of our members through engaging others who have the specific skills and talents to assist us.

Come and celebrate with us.

Stella Shizuka Matsuda, President

The Board of Directors met near San Diego, CA on February 16-17 at the home of Emmalyn Moreno. Although blizzards and storms threatened to prevent members from flying in from back East, they were able to attend and enjoy the sunny skies of California. The next Board meeting will be before Festival '07 in Berkeley, CA, on July 16, 2007. All members are welcomed to attend.

EDITORIAL

Volume III And We Have Danced is ready for the printer, BUT I still do not have photos from you for this book! I have made calls to several members for pictures for the cover and will take some that have been in the Journal.

This issue theme "Many Faiths...Many Forms...Dancing the Sacred Together" has brought interesting articles. And did you either watch the Sacred Dance Guild Web Site or did you get a beautiful post card about the upcoming Festival 2007 on July 17-22 in Berkeley, California?

All of our Sacred Dance Guild members are busy at this time of year with the many faces of Faith as they move for and with that Faith. And your editor is no exception. The Motion Choir of Saint Francis Xavier is preparing for the Dance of Miriam for Holy Saturday. Perhaps the theme of the Fall issue could be Seasons of the Year in Dance.

Time still passes so quickly. With former President Gerald Ford's death, we send our love and sympathy to Betty Ford, honorary Sacred Dance Guild member. Many of us are in wonder as we also move our way into that eternal dance.

Please continue to send your news, as well as dates for the Calendar of Events, to journal@sacreddanceguild.org or Toni' Intravaia, Editor, 201 Hewitt, Carbondale, Illinois 62901, and send your news from chapters to Emmalyn Morena, PO Box 357, San Luis Rey, CA 92068 and from regions to Patricia Bowen, 32 Fairbalm Street No. 2, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1S7A3. The deadlines are August 15, November 15, and March 15.

Letters to the Editor

From Carla DeSola, Berkeley, California

Community Dancers, co-taught by myself and Sylvia Miller-Multia, contributed beautifully to several liturgical events; and Omega dancers continued in their tradition to serve in a variety of religious settings. We were honored to perform at Grace Cathedral in the installation of Bishop Marc Handley Andrus on July 22. I was commissioned to create a dance (I Have Seen the Lord; a Mary Magdalene Sequence) along with a commissioned score. It was an exciting liturgical venture and very well received. I was also deeply engaged this past Spring with reconstructing a dance first performed at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in NYC in 1986 - Sojourner Truth! At last I had the performers to handle it, and the dance still proved to be prophetic! It was adapted for a cast including a dancer, singer, and actress (all from the GTU) with performances at the Church of the Fellowship of All Peoples and The City of Refuge in San Francisco, as well as for the senior chapel at PSR. We hope to continue offering it in the coming year.

As you must be aware, most churches cannot afford to offer what is needed to pay for rehearsals and performance fees. We turn to you for your assistance and thank you for making both the courses and dances possible. We encourage your continued and enhanced support in 2007-2008. Your financial support and personal input make you a co-creator in all our programs.

In Memoriam

Virginia Huffine (MN) died of cancer on December 23, 2006 at the age of 84. She joined the Sacred Dance Guild in 1962 and worked with Rev. Robert Storer in Massachusetts. Over the years, she served our organization in many capacities and presented solo and group choreographies in churches and social service venues.

A trained dancer with expertise in East Indian dance and other ethnic forms, she often incorporated multi-cultural elements in her works. She and her husband, Coy Huffine, relocated and finally settled in Rochester, Minnesota, where she founded the Seraphim dance company. She was a performer, choreographer, and artistic director of Seraphim. She faithfully gathered and reported news of sacred dance events in the Minnesota area. Her involvement in promoting dance as a religious art form and supporting the Guild will be greatly missed.

Members wishing to express condolences to the family, or to reach Coy, should direct their communications to Jerry Huffine, their son, at 2679 Brookdale Lane, Brooklyn Park, MN 55444.

Many Faiths...Many Forms...Dancing the Sacred Together

CONNECTING THROUGH DANCE

By Kristin Rose, Youth Director

I can still remember the moment. There I was: beige leotard, gold-sequined tutu, cute bear tail, fuzzy felt ears, still small enough to play in McDonald's Playplace (that was a long, long time ago!) - I was surrounded by girls that were dressed exactly like me - we were all Winnie the Pooh that day.

Well, actually we were just going to dance to a song sung by Winnie the Pooh. It was my first dance recital. My best friend was in my class. We were two very different people. She'd spend class making faces in the mirror at herself; I diligently did my plies and tendus. We'd spent months preparing for the upcoming moment when we would step on that stage.

I can imagine that at that time my view of the world revolved around that moment. It must have been a big deal if I spent an entire year preparing for it. I went to dance class once a week, practiced at home under my mother's eye (she probably got tired of having to constantly watch me do plie after plie...after plie - it's just bending your knees), danced with my stuffed animals, and wore that costume around the house as soon as it was in my hands.

Dance class was a time for me to first make friends and then play with them. Play was dancing, laughing, and a whole lot of fun. I had found something I really loved. Where did this love come from? Why did I have fun with these strangers? What was dance to me and why did it connect my life so well. Bottom line: it didn't matter. I was three years old and I was a star!

As I have grown from an innocent, narrow-minded child to a perceptive young adult, I have begun to answer some of those questions through changes that have taken place in my life.

I'm reminded of the first time I attended church and what subsequently happened through sacred dance. I was in eighth grade and knew little about the spiritual realm, but this day brought an experience that completely changed my idea of spirituality.

Prior to attending church, God was a part of my life but in a much more all-knowing, omniscient way. He just looked out for me, my friends, and my family. He provided the "background" to the morals and values my parents taught me. He was an outsider looking in and taking care of what was needed.

That very first time I entered church, I was immediately approached by a woman (a woman who would become my friend and mentor) who asked if I wanted to join the church's sacred dance group. She had heard from our friends that already attended the church that I was a dancer and wanted to extend the invitation to me. That Sunday evening I began my experience in sacred dance and my idea of spirituality slowly morphed into something very different from previous perceptions.

I began to realize that though God is omniscient, He is not as uninvolved in my life and my problems as I had previously assumed. I grew to form a personal relationship with Christ - I could talk and pray to him before I went to bed or anytime really, I could learn His lessons by reading His book; I could connect in a totally new way through movement, through dance. Dance had always been an outlet for me, a way to escape and experience joy. Dance, in the sacred realm which eventually became all dance, soon became a way for me to connect instead of escape - connect to God. I still experienced joy but this was a whole new kind of joy; it was a whole new level of elatedness.

Perhaps some of you have had similar experiences though sacred dance. I know for me, I can begin to answer some of those questions that didn't matter when I considered myself a star at three years of age. I loved dance because I was using my gifts to glorify God. I had fun with those strangers because many of them became like my sisters through our common relationship with dance. And why did dance connect my life so well; because it forged the way for a personal relationship with Christ, an unending bond with my sisters, and an opportunity to invite others to the dance.

Free to Jump for Joy

by Jeannine Bunyan

When on vacation in Tanzania, Africa 2005, we visited a girls' school. In order to inspire the young students, the women in our groups were asked to tell about their careers. Silently I was wondering how I would explain just exactly what I do? Since an interpreter was necessary, I thought to myself. "Well this will be the true test of my belief that Dance is the Universal Language of Spirit!" So I explained, "I help people discover ways they can express how they feel." Then I taught them a simple dance/song showing how heavy we move when sad, then how we clap and Jump for Joy, when we are happy.

At another village we chanced upon a political rally where people from many villages were congregated. In Africa, dancing seems to be spontaneous at any public event! Each village could be identified by the women's clothing and their particular dance style. Since native dances are simple and repetitive, I was soon copying on the sidelines. Next thing I knew, a smiling woman came over and pulled me into their circle. I joined in happily, repeating their movements and imitating their sounds. I didn't have a clue what I was singing, but it was great fun and they seemed to be really pleased. My co-travelers said it was quite a sight to see a blonde, blue-eyed gal cutting up with the locals. They also commented on how natural I was and wished they could be free and uninhibited.

Yes, we in Dance Ministry are inclined to take for granted how Creative Movement liberates us to "live it up!" We forget that so many people in "developed societies" are imprisoned in their bodies. I believe it is our calling to use our dance gifts to help people integrate mind+body+spirit, so they can feel free to - - - Jump for Joy!

BUTOH WORKSHOP: A Snail's Path to Ascension

by Judith Kajiware

One spring day I was sitting in my backyard. In the middle of the lawn, a tiny moving object caught my eye. It was a snail painstakingly crawling over each tiny blade of grass. After observing for quite some time, I extended my finger to its shell only to make it cringe and disappear within. Moments later it re-emerged and without missing a beat continued crawling up and down each blade of grass. It never once stopped to wonder where it was going. It just seemed to know.

This experience struck me as very profound—one which demanded my full attention. What was the magical message from this tiny creature? How had it landed in the middle of the lawn so far away from the surrounding plants? Had it already completed half its journey? What within its microscopic consciousness fueled such microcosmic patience and intention? Was it aware that traveling to the surrounding garden could become a life-long journey? Or did it matter?

There is much to be learned from life viewed through the eyes of a lone snail. As intriguing as a snail's journey is the journey of butoh.

Butoh first appeared in Tokyo in 1959, and was immediately repudiated by the Japanese modern dance community as disgusting and embarrassing. Labeled the "dance of darkness," its bizarre, shocking movement gestures were a sordid reflection of post-war Japan. In the midst of nuclear devastation, butoh artists courageously searched for the meaning of immortality. In attempting to transcend the limitations of the physical body, butoh adopted an extremely slow, contorted, grimacing style. In stark contrast to western and Japanese classical dance with its superficial perfection and grace, butoh became an honest, raw reflection of pain and anguish—a beautiful expression of ugliness.

Because of its peculiar style and audacity, the fascination for butoh has spread throughout the world; and decades later, it is still performed as a non-mainstream, counter-culture dance form. Without a doubt, the need to merge the spiritual with the worldly continues to be an enormous challenge. Spiritual activism and global awareness require we openly speak out against the powers of elitism, privilege and intellectualism. As artists, we are responsible for unveiling our Truth. By acknowledging the need from which butoh originated, perhaps we can begin to replace planetary violence with peace, and darkness with light.

As a third generation Japanese American I honor the history of butoh as a sacred gift to our spiritual growth. In my workshops, butoh honors everyone's dance in a non-competitive, supportive and friendly atmosphere. It brings to our awareness personal discoveries that enable us to remain in a space of simplicity and innocence—without expectations and without judgment. Beginning with a set of simple warm-ups, the butoh journey flows gently from one experience to another. Eventually it ends with its amazing potential to elevate both personal and collective awareness.

Butoh is similar to meditation or prayer. Instead of sitting in a position of stillness, however, the body is engaged in improvisational, slow-motion movement with eyes wide open. Yet the same stillness resides undisturbed within. In this way, butoh nurtures our inner landscape where stories are told, emotions are witnessed, Spirit is renewed, and prayers are answered.

Butoh maintains an element of Japanese aesthetics that is subtle and restrained. It is not outwardly expressive. To be authentic, butoh requires that feelings are felt, though not necessarily expressed outwardly by the physical body. Transmitting non-physically through silent communication, the body becomes the physical encasement of Spirit moving "as if it has no bones."

Whether taking a class, performing, or watching a performance, butoh has the potential to break through the veils of the physical eye. We're forced to see with our spiritual eye. Thus we enter the Judith Kajiware will teach Japanese Butoh at Festival 2007.

"butohspace," where the body fades, time stops, consciousness expands. We become peaceful and whole—one with each other and the Universe.

A Snail's Path to Ascension will provide an experiential space for movement, sharing, and awakening. By going beyond the comfort zone—trusting our bodies, trusting our ability to open up to others, trusting our intuition, and trusting the messages and stories that enter our consciousness—the potential for wisdom is endless.

The eyes of a snail are the eyes of wisdom. One by one, we patiently scale each blade of grass, until our destination is reached.

Blessings for Betty Ford

by Mary Jane Wolbers

In December, 2006, Sacred Dance Guild members across the nation joined those in the Southern California Chapter to mourn the loss of Betty Ford's husband, Gerald. Our hearts went out to her as we watched the televised coverage of military rituals accorded to ex-Presidents of the US being laid to rest.

Betty was designated as an Honorary Member of the Sacred Dance Guild on November 30, 1976 by Guild President Martha Yates. The award recognized her service to the Guild as evidenced by her interest in promoting dance as a religious art form, and participating in choirs. Gerald Ford was an enthusiastic supporter of his wife's involvement in dance, and particularly in the art form as a dimension of worship.

Betty's dance study began at the age of eight and continued into adulthood. After graduating from high school, she attended the Bennington School of Dance in Vermont where she studied under Martha Graham, Doris Humphrey, Hanya Holm, Charles Weidman and other noted dance artists. Later, she studied with Graham in New York City and became a member of the Graham Concert Dance Group. She has also taught dance to handicapped children.

In May 1976, she returned to Bennington for the dedication of the college art center, and in November that year she presided over the Cornerstone Laying Ceremony at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis, MA. It was at that time she received the Sacred Dance Guild's honor.

Our sincere condolences are with her. May her life in sacred dance be a source of strength and comfort in the years ahead.

Gifts from Many Cultures Enriching God's People

By Sister Martha Ann Kirk, Th.D.

At Pentecost the Spirit of God was poured out on people of many nations, on old and young, male and female. St. Paul writes, "There is neither Jew or Gentile, slave or free, male or female, we are all one in Christ Jesus." Christian Worship should be a celebration of diversity and unity stretching people's hearts and minds to seek justice and share compassion. This past year at the University of the Incarnate Word in San Antonio, Texas, we had a Worship Renewal Grant that provided a series of workshops and performances celebrating the breadth of Christianity. The series included gifts from Hispanic, Middle Eastern and Orthodox, African and African American, Asian and Asian American, and the Euro-American traditions. The program was made possible through a Worship Renewal Grant from the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship, Grand Rapids, Michigan, with funds provided by Lilly Endowment Inc. As we focused on worship renewal in general, we came to recognize the transformative value of dance and drama in prayer.

The Word became flesh and dwelt among us . . .

We have seen His glory. . .

In Wisdom dancing with the Vietnamese until the gentle melodies become stronger than the cries of the boat people drowning,

The Word made flesh in stories of people seeking refuge
after the devastation of Katrina, the displacement of Palestinians, the massacres in Sierra Leone,

In the drama of the man born blind who comes to see the Christ
while the people around the man become blind to Christ's glory,

In the "Amazing Grace" of Korean American children playing the song on the instruments of their grandparents,

And the Word became flesh in the womb of Mary, imaged as the Nahuatl Guadalupe, and among the native people of the New World the Word echoed in songs of hope and dignity,

In the sounds of the ancient chant so close to the Aramaic Jesus spoke and strumming of harps and ouds,

In the persistent praise of the African American tradition, reverberating with courageous hope in the midst of the challenges,

Yes, we have seen the glory of the Word made flesh,
the image of the unseen God, prying open our eyes to see the Divine reflected in all the peoples of the earth.

Please read an extended version of this article with many color pictures of the dance and drama. Go to www.sacreddanceguild.org, click on Articles, then click on "Gifts from Many Cultures." Sr. Martha Ann Kirk and Bro. Rufino Zaragoza will be presenting a workshop on Vietnamese dance at the SDG Festival this summer.

Dance Eruption Hawaii: Let the Spirit Play, Let the Lava Flow!

By Lucia Samuels

Sacred Dance Guild Hawaii Chapter invites you to participate in a SDG 50th Anniversary Dance Retreat Celebration, Dec. 28, 2007 - Jan. 1, 2008 at Volcano, Hawaii, on the Big Island. January 2008 marks 25 years of the continuous flow of Kilauea Volcano. Join us over the New Year's weekend at the heart of creation to experience a depth of Hawaiian spirituality, personal awakenings and community building. Our Presenter from Seattle, Betsey Beckman, teacher of SpiritPlay, will lead us in exploring prayer, play and scripture through the gift of dance.

The Big Island Liturgy & Arts Center (www.bilac.org) and Volcano Village's Cooper Center facilities will co-sponsor the event, with affordable nearby historic B&B group-shared accommodations (www.myislandinnhawaii.com). An evening of Dances of Universal Peace in Volcano and a New Year's Eve Community Dance Celebration in Hilo town will also be included in the holiday event.

Join Betsey and other local spirited dance leaders for a lively and reflective weekend celebrating our journey into the new year and our embodied prayers for the turning world.

Direct flights to Hilo, Hawaii are available from Oakland, CA on ATA. Check the Sacred Dance Guild Hawaii web site for updates in coming months or contact Lucia Samuels (808) 969-7991, LLsamuels@gmail.com.

Betsey Beckman, MM, (www.sacredcenter.org) is nationally acclaimed as a spirited dancer, storyteller, teacher of SpiritPlay and dancing Spiritual Director. With her extensive background in performance, movement therapy, ministry and InterPlay, she is regularly featured as artist/presenter at national conventions as well as local churches. Betsey's publications include books, audio-cassettes and videos on embodied prayer and she offers the gift of playful improvisation whenever possible!

Letter to the Editor of The Phoenix Regarding the Sacred Arts Festival in Phoenixville, PA

By Jan Swarr

This past weekend I was privileged to attend the Sacred Arts Festival held at various venues throughout our community. Sponsored by the Sacred Dance Guild, performers, artists and participants came from as far away as New York, Boston, and yes, even New Mexico. I would like to quote directly from the Statement of Intent for the event: "Intentional variety in faith, culture, origin and art forms will cultivate and awaken the natural dignity and solemn beauty of spiritual realization, whatever its expression". How right they were!

I was unprepared for the literal smorgasbord of incredible talent, all with one purpose in mind - to help us understand each other more and realize, in our search for The Divine, that we truly need one another. The opening dance concert galvanized it right away for me. I watched the faces of the graceful dancers from Avodah Dance ensemble and instinctively knew that although they embraced a faith different from my own, it didn't matter. They could teach all of us something about dedication and inspiration, and that they did. Willingly and happily outclassed all weekend long by the brilliant performers, I witnessed transformation, inspiration, learning, and brotherhood. I sat at their feet, inspired and teachable. I made new friends and reconnected with old ones. It became clear that each of the brilliant performers, no matter what their faith or affiliation, could have easily chosen Broadway, major recording studios, Motown, or any other commercial venue. Instead, they chose to inspire and heal through the medium of sacred art. Thank God for them, and there is NO pun intended here!

Of course our Kiwanis Community Day was blessed beyond measure as our Reeves Park band shell stage was graced all day long with group after group. I saw and heard instruments I never had seen before. There were classes, workshops, healing circles, special programs for children ... a complete and total offering to help you on your spiritual walk. Those of you who could not attend this year had better not make that mistake next year.

When Atzilut, the orchestra featuring Arab and Jewish musicians in concert together, coupled with The Gospel Disciples from Chester, combined forces to literally bring down the house bringing home the point that God works through all peoples, you should have been there. We danced in the aisles. We cheered. We wept. We hugged. Truly, we came together.

This event was also one of the best organized events I have ever attended and although the audiences were small, the spirit of the entire weekend was immense. In closing, I would like to quote the Vision of this wonderful event. "The mind-body-spirit connection to the sacred will be explored through music, dance, poetry, storytelling, theatre and fine arts. This festival will encourage the community to recognize the divine in each other, promoting respect, acceptance and understanding. A festival of sacred arts will bring people together in an experience of peaceful and beautiful coexistence, replacing stress with harmony, serenity, and joy." How apropos that the event should be held in Phoenixville, with our rich diversity. How blessed we are! In our journey to become closer to The Divine, may that Higher Power, in the words of the beloved gospel song, truly order our steps.

Physically Integrated Dance Workshops Taught by AXIS Dancers

By Annika Nonhebel

In March, AXIS Dance Company presented a three day Physically Integrated Dance Workshop taught by Sonsherée Giles and Alice Sheppard. This exciting genre of dance was for people with and without physical disabilities.

Sonsherée Giles and Alice Sheppard

The workshop combined improvisation, creative movement and modern dance techniques to create and explore solo, duet and ensemble material. The focus of these classes was to deepen our capacity for movement invention both in our unique bodies and in relationship to the bodies around us. Adults with and without previous dance experience were welcomed.

A Physically Integrated Dance Masterclass was taught on Saturday. The class focused on creative movement using improvisational dance techniques. This dance exploration was a fun way to learn about yourself as well as heighten your sensitivity of listening to both self and others. We challenged the modern dance canon by asking questions - what is dance and who can dance.

Sacred Dance at Saint Paul Lutheran Church

By Joann Flanigan

Sacred Dance at Saint Paul Lutheran Church, Sarasota, Florida: For their Christmas Eve program, new SDG member Adrienne Summerall danced "Breath of Heaven". Wearing a white top and white skirt, Adrienne was a young breath of fresh air in her lovely solo dance. Her mother, Pam Jorno, was one of the vocalists, and her father John played the piano.

On February 18, former SDG President Joann Flanigan danced "You Who Dwell in the Shelter of the Lord (On Eagle's Wings)" for St. Paul's Sunday morning Service of Joy. Adrienne and her mother were two of the vocalists while John played the piano.

The dance began as a procession to the altar with the presentation of a white candle for this Transfiguration of our Lord Service. Joann wore a white tunic with flared embroidered sleeves a long black skirt.

Sacred dance has been very well received at Saint Paul's, with many thanks to Pastor Lyle Truitt.

"Sharing the Light Within Us With Others"

By Elaine Herg Sisler, Skyloom Dancer

Skyloom conducted a series of sacred dance educational and rehearsal sessions with youth representing grades 3, 4, and 5 at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Concord, Massachusetts during November and December of 2006. These sessions introduced children to the tradition of sacred dance.

Skyloom has danced at Trinity Church many times over recent years. We felt it appropriate to reach out to the youth of this parish to promote and demonstrate dance as prayer and a means for their spiritual growth. The children were enthusiastic and responsive in rehearsal and the worship service. They danced and prayed with dignity and ease. Skyloom also collaborated with Trinity's music director to select the sermon dance music "Every Star Shall Sing a Carol" sung by a counter tenor from the Trinity choir. Simple tunics were made for the children making it easy for them to change from their choir robes into dance attire.

Skyloom collaborated with the new religious education program director, Janice Yancy, at Trinity Church to:

- Teach children a simple processional to be adapted for future liturgical events.
- Help children create a sermon dance that was integrated into the First Sunday in Advent worship service.

Skyloom Dancers and children

- Instruct, rehearse and prepare the children physically, emotionally and spiritually to perform in a worship service.
- Understand the importance of commitment and cooperation in a group effort.
- Use the art of dance as means of spiritual/aesthetic expression and growth.

Skyloom feels strongly that we were successful in our role of introducing dance as a form of prayer, worship and ritual to the youth of Trinity Church. As a result of the Doane grant project, we guided young people to reflect upon the rich past history of sacred dance and create a new venue for their spiritual growth. Together we learned, created and performed sacred dances in blessed moments of peace and harmony.

It all began with the "Sharing the Light" Workshop. On November 12, 2006, Skyloom dancer Shirley Blancke stood among a group of children with a basket over her head. "What's up with that?" one of the students asked. Lifting the basket to reveal a smiling face, Shirley explained how God wants us to get out from under our baskets to share our light with others. Soon with candles in hand, the young dancers were sharing their light while exploring space, time and force in interesting ways. The students also discussed the concept of processions including football rallies, weddings and parades. In the sanctuary they practiced processing in rhythmic time down the aisles creating a reverent ritual. Their candles were placed in a large basket. Skyloom's Sybille Volz and Ruth Lieberherr danced with the consolidated light sharing it with the congregation.

Together the Skyloom dancers and the children created a Sermon Dance titled "Dancing into the Light". On December 3, 2006 Skyloom danced with a large white silk symbolizing the light of Christ down the center aisle of Trinity Church in Concord, Massachusetts. Several children took turns stepping into and under the light as the silk billowed alternately over their outstretched arms and rounded backs. Skyloom dancers led the children in a series of sways, turns and gestures that synchronized their energies with that of the silk. We were one with the light. Reverently the silk was cradled in the children's arms as they danced back down the main aisle sharing the light, human and divine with the congregation.

This dance in its simplicity seems most appropriate as we reflect on the dark days of winter and war. Perhaps if we are brave enough to seek and dance into divine light we can bring peace and harmony to our troubled world and personal lives.

HELP WANTED

Internet

Do you like using the Internet? Exploring sacred dance possibilities? How about ferreting out new music, moves, and people? Want to be the first to find new events for your fellow dancers? I would love to have someone working with me, finding new resources for sacred dancers, and answering questions from SDG members and others who visit the SDG website. Interested? Contact Kat at pettycrewkd@yahoo.com or 856-728-9546.

Festival 2008

As we begin to dream of Festival 2008, here are a few questions. Don't think too hard on the answers - just send back whatever visions/pictures/ideas pop into your mind!

- Is there a person and/or event that immediately comes to mind when you think of the 50th celebration? Someone or something you can't imagine this celebration without??

- Is there something you've either never seen/done at Festival (or seen/done rarely) that would excite you to have at Festival 2008?

- Put down words/thoughts that come to mind when you dream/vision of our 50th celebration!

Send your thoughts to Wendy Morrell at wendy.morrell@sympatico.ca.

A ballot is coming in June. It will include a motion for a change in the Sacred Dance Guild by-laws.

The Annual Membership Meeting will be held Friday, July 20, 2007, at the banquet at Festival.

Festival 2007

Grove on the University of California Campus our special events are planned with the idea of developing community. There will be an Improv Dance Party with WingIt, an evening of Dances of Universal Peace, two concerts, and a reception and banquet at Pacific School of Religion.

Lunch discussion Groups

Do you have a topic you'd like to discuss with other Sacred Dancers? Let us know and we'll schedule a lunch or dinner discussion table for your topic! Email Connie Tyler at connie@deephum.com with your special topic. And save Thursday lunch for a Chapter informational meeting. Chapter members are encouraged to come and find out about the business of being a Sacred Dance Guild Chapter.

Additional Events and Information:

Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday Afternoons, Sharing! A Panel Discussion on Dance in the Liturgy

Youth Caucus

Lunch discussion groups on topics of your choice

College Credit is available through Pacific School of Religion

All workshops and events are subject to change.

Share your gifts! Announce your talents!

In the next Directory, the 2007-2008 Golden Jubilee Edition, we hope the full range of our members' offerings and talents will be represented. It makes the booklet much more interesting. It shows who we are. It also gives you a full year's exposure, and you can support the Guild by helping to offset the cost of printing this important means of communication.

The options are:

"Member offering": a listing up to five lines long, $20.

"Business card": If you already have one all you have to do is drop one in the mail or email it to address below: $45.

1/2 page ad (maximum of 4" high x 4.5" wide): $75. Email or send a hard copy.

full page ad (printed size 7.5" x 4.5"): $125.

The deadline is October 1. Don't take a chance on forgetting: if you can't do it right away, send me a note and I'll remind you. Send your offering, card, or ad to: Ellen Roberts Young, 2216 Durango Ct. Las Cruces, NM 88011. Or email to EllenSDG@cs.com.

Help Us Find Festival Sponsors!

Our annual festival is really the only major fund raiser the international Sacred Dance Guild has. For the first 47 years of this organization's life everything we did was done by volunteers. As time went on, the organization and members got older, and didn't really grow. Finally, a couple of years ago, we hired an administrator to at least handle the membership renewals, and book keeping. Peggy Hoffman, a sacred dancer, whose firm, Mariner Management, is our administrator, has done much more than this for us and is also handling the registration and bookkeeping for our Festival.

But to keep paying Peggy, and to work toward more paid help for things like publicity, grant writing, soliciting informative articles for our Journal, etc, our festival needs to make a good profit. One of the ways to do this and still keep our registration fees down is to get sponsors.

Below is some sponsor information.

Please look it over and see if you would like to be a sponsor or know of anyone who might like to help sponsor the festival.

ADVERTISING & EXHIBITING OPTIONS:

SDG CHAPTER AND REGION NEWS

Arizona

Sacred dance and dance with a message is going strong in Arizona. Ballet Sanctus, directed by Ann Snyman-Blackman, a company well-represented by youth, presents in churches and at weddings and receptions. Well-crafted, spirit-filled-with-a-message presentations are created on these young but talented individuals. Miriam Dancers, out of Sun City, seem to always be presenting and doing good throughout their community - bringing the joy of their messages everywhere! Sally Summey Gebler, a force in the Christian community, presents amazingly passionate solos and renditions of biblical events at Unity of Phoenix. AZDance Group, a Christian faith-based professional contemporary dance company, is currently premiering a new piece, "Passages"; short stories of eternal hope, love found and freedoms celebrated. Also, an audience favorite and most recently seen at the Mesa Arts Center, "Run For Life" is about and for Cancer survivors and their family members. Visit www.azdance.org for full details and upcoming concerts and presentations.

Celebration Dance Concert, directed by Kenda Newbury, features the professionals of AZDance, K. Mockingbird, Grammy nominated flutist of the Dimeh Nation, Jeffrey Polston, Principal Complexions Contemporary Ballet Company and Movement E-Motion, dance program for individuals with different abilities, Friday, May 4 at 7:00 PM, Saturday,

Agape Dancers at the First Congregational Church

May 5 at 1:00 PM and 6:00 PM at Boulder Creek High School Performing Art Center in Anthem, AZ. 480-215-1916 azdancegroup@yahoo.com. Amazing Grace concert, directed by Lynne Haeseler, will feature live music, dance and drama at Trinity Cathedral in Phoenix May 12, 2007, lhaeseler@cox.net.

Nevada

The Agape Dancers West performed at the First Congregational Church in Las Vegas, NV. They worshiped at the installation of the pastor by offering an interpretation of "Colors of the Wind." The group was formed in January 2006.

Constitution Chapter

Dance Circles was led by Jeanne Ayesha Lauenborg, Certified Dance Leader & Senior Mentor Teacher in PeaceWorks International Network for the Dances of Universal Peace on April 21 at Ambler, PA.

All were invited to dance and sing in sacred circles using simple folk dance movements and melodies from a wide variety of mystical traditions. This workshop was held in conjunction with UNESCO's annual International Dance Day, held on April 29 of every year, which promotes dance as a universal language.

NY/SW Connecticut Chapter

The Chapter has been holding a series of monthly workshops at St. Stephen of Hungary Church, New York, NY, focused on deepening our faith and spirituality through the tools and discipline of dance. Led by Mary Christine O'Connor-Thomsen, the workshops have been well attended and enthusiastically received. There are two workshops remaining in the series; one on April 15 and one on May 20.

Please note that the Chapter has scholarship money available for those chapter members who may want to attend Festival 2007 in Berkeley in July. Please contact Betsy O'Neill, 212-535-4235, for further information.
